Now perhaps at this stage, ladies and gentlemen, it might be helpful and constructive to do a little recapitulating and try to see just what the ingredients are that we have in this whole historic, international picture, perhaps the turn of history, and do so in the light of this weasel-worded communication that was sent in the name of our great nation this afternoon.

Number 1: We have an intelligence agency headed by the younger brother of the Secretary of State, which does not produce any intelligence and instead conducts a game of international cops and robbers and while protecting its ineffectiveness by screaming that it cannot be investigated or even overseen because that might give away some secrets. What secrets? The only thing Allen Dulles could come up with when this crisis first broke and the White House called for a consultation was some moth-eaten, hours-old press dispatches, which themselves were only pickups from the Baghdad radio.

Number 2: Mr. Khrushchev demands a summit conference and begins to lay down all sorts of rules and regulations about who is to come and what is to be discussed and what the procedure shall be and even when the conference is going to be held. To all practical purposes, in the eyes of the world, we cringe in the corner behind the United Nations with a lot of apologetic double talk and mealy-mouth words and let him get away with it.

Number 3: We allow Nasir in Egypt to violate every concept of international order, by seducing one nation after another in the Middle East, we don't breathe the first syllable of protest about that. Here is an international brigand, and a mad one at that, who is bent on international conquest alongside Communist Russia and we allow ourselves to be called to account for stopping him, and while we allow ourselves to be called to account for stopping him, we don't take the first step to call him to account for anything at all.

Number 4: We allow Russia to make a great play on the world's stage by making an issue of our protective and defensive intervention in Lebanon, but we do nothing about the countries which Russia is holding in slavery and has held in slavery for 13 years.

No. 5: We allow ourselves to get sucked into a public forum for the world to see through the medium of movies and radio and television, in which we put President Dwight D. Eisenhower against such past masters of debate as Khrushchev and Nehru, and Nasir himself, to be made ridiculous. Mr. Eisenhower, fine man that he may be, is no debater and that is what it is going to turn into, and it is to no avail anyway, if the rules are to be no resolutions and no votes within the council. That leaves Mr. Khrushchev completely clear of any possible council votes against him to take complete advantage of the show he can put on to the discredit of the Western powers.

No. 6: Mr. Khrushchev, himself is coming to New York, thus creating a very dangerous situation indeed. In New York City, we might just as well face this, are centered hundreds of thousands of the hapless people whom this butcher has driven from their homelands and whose friends and families he has had murdered. Now they can be controlled by mere police, however many police is a question which I have not heard answered as yet, they hate this man for what he represents, as well as for what he has done to them, and if he is assassinated while he is in this country, it may well be the start of World War III, and probably would be. The sad part of all of this is that there is no need for any of it; the reason it is taking place is that a lot of fake dreamers are trying to prop up a dead horse called the United Nations and the wily Mr. Khrushchev has taken them up on it, seeing an opportunity to use it to his own, very great, very great advantage.

If we weaken in the Middle East, ladies and gentlemen, it is the passport to disaster and that frankly, it has to be said, is what is in the cards at the present time, if the State Department can possibly persuade the President to see the game their way.
